Given the FDA's approval in March of the drug Ocrevus to treat multiple sclerosis, organizers of the 24th annual Race to Erase MS gala had good reason to celebrate.

According to event host Nancy Davis, the research that event proceeds have funded over the years has included studies for the drug.

"You dream forever and you have lots of events and then to see something like this, it's like the home run," Davis said. "[The new drug] is overwhelmingly exciting. It's going to help so many people."

The event: Honoring Jamie-Lynn Sigler, well known for her role on HBO's "The Sopranos," the star-studded May 5 soiree at the Beverly Hilton in Beverly Hills featured appearances by Kathy Griffin, Lance Bass, Randy Jackson, Lisa Rinna and Quincy Jones and musical direction by David Foster.

The iconic rock band Chicago delivered a 45-minute concert after a dynamic performance by "Man in the Mirror" songwriter/singer Siedah Garrett and turns onstage by singers Shawn Hook, Trevis Brendmoe, Olivia Keegan and David Osmond.

The scene: In a nod to Cinco de Mayo, a mariachi band played as guests checked out the 500-item silent auction and later found guacamole, salsa and chips on the tables the moment they seated themselves for dinner and the show.

"I figure that when people first walk into the ballroom, they just want to sit down and eat," Davis said.

The honoree: In a conversation before the official ceremonies, Sigler, who only last year revealed her battle with MS, said she was diagnosed during her "Sopranos" years, when she was also playing Belle in Disney's "Beauty and the Beast" on Broadway.

"It was hard for me to accept," she said. "I felt well and healthy, but when I talked to the people I confided in, I was advised that it was probably best to keep it secret because people might limit me."

But keeping the secret "was taking away from who I was," she said. "It started to weigh on me, not just physically, but emotionally. ... I decided I should be OK with being open and living my truth."

Sigler said she wanted to thank people now for their support and to "work with it," adding, "I'm grateful. I can sit here and rattle off all the things that have been taken away from me, but this has taught me about peace and surrender and how to appreciate. Everyone has something in their life, and this is my thing."

The crowd: Guests included screen stars Naya Rivera, Paris Hilton, Kris Jenner, Pia Toscano, Marg Helgenberger, Lacey Greene, Emmanuelle Chriqui, and Gilles Marini; dancers Sharna Burgess, Jenna Johnson, Lindsay Arnold, Maksim Chmerkovskiy and Peta Murgalroyd; songwriter Diane Warren and fashion designer Tommy Hilfiger.

The numbers: By evening's end, the gala had raised $1.6 million, in part thanks to the auction proceeds, which included $290,000 for a bespoke Aston Martin DB11 coupe. Tickets for the 1,000 guests began at $1,000, with sponsorship packages ranging to $100,000.

Jamie-Lynn Sigler Opens Up About 'Lonely' MS Battle and Trying to Be the Best Mom She Can Be

by Liz Calvario 6:23 PM PDT, May 03, 2017

Jamie-Lynn Sigler will be honored with the Medal of Hope Award at the 24th Annual Race to Erase MS Gala on Friday, May 5 in Los Angeles. The 35-year-old actress, who has been battling multiple sclerosis for the past 15 years, first went public with her diagnosis in January 2016 and is now opening up about how lonely her MS battle can be.

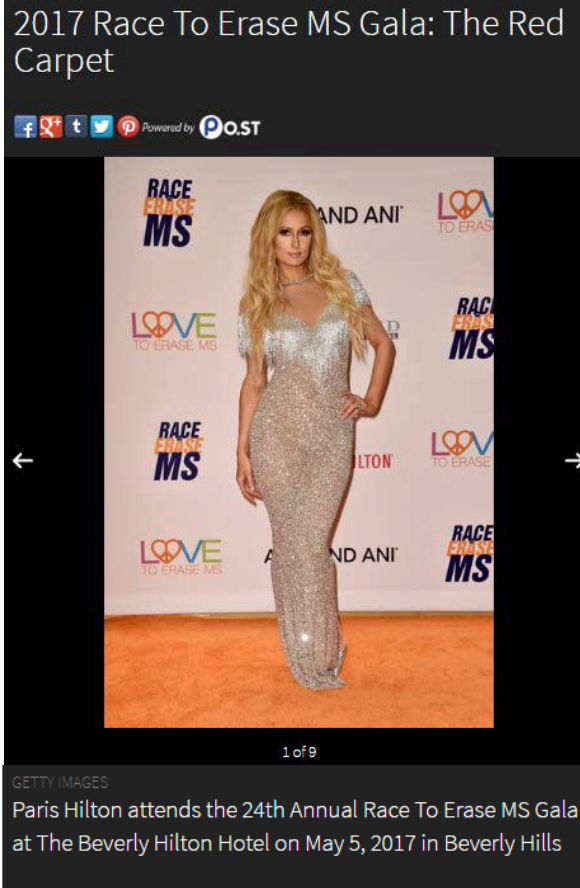

"So much of your life, I think when you're living with MS, can feel like tunnel vision, like you're just really in this fight every day and you can't look outside yourself," Sigler expressed ahead of the Race to Erase MS Gala, alongside founder Nancy Davis, who praised the actress for being so strong. "So to hear something like that, that means the world because it just sometimes feels like I'm in my [own] fight. So to feel like I'm in this fight with other people, and I might've helped some other people, it makes it a lot easier."

The benefit raised $1.6 million towards the organization's mission of finding medical advancements to help cure MS.

At the silent auction before the Race to Erase MS Gala on Friday, founder Nancy Davis said this year's event at the Beverly Hilton should be "a huge celebration" because of recent medical advances.

"There's a new drug called Ocrevus that's changed the entire MS landscape," said Davis, who herself suffers from the central nervous system disorder. "With certain types of the disease, it helps 90 percent of the people."

As part of that celebration, Davis decided the night should begin with her own daughters Isabella and Mariella dancing, then came remarks from Kathy Griffin, who began by saying, "Hello, rich white people and Quincy Jones." After some obscenities directed at President Donald Trump, who she wants "impeached by this weekend," Griffin noted the gala was being held on Cinco de Mayo and said her intention was to stand on the president's intended wall "and throw the immigrants back in."

Honoree and MS sufferer Jamie-Lynn Sigler, who was introduced by friend Lance Bass, said, "At first it felt strange to get an award for a disease you have." Then, fighting back tears, she added, "A disability can make your world feel small, but I have a way for looking to make it bigger."

"I want to be back onstage singing on Broadway again," Sigler continued. "I want to be back in this room for the Golden Globes again one day. These are the affirmations I recite daily, because not too long ago there were days I didn't even think I could go on."

The night's musical entertainment began with Jones introducing Siedah Garrett, who performed "Man in the Mirror," the mega-hit she co-wrote for Michael Jackson. She went on to reveal that she herself has MS and "though my husband said I shouldn't say this, I'm here to make MS my bitch." Garrett then sang "Carry On," a new song she wrote about having MS, to strong applause.

Garrett was followed by an effective though deafeningly loud live auction. (The entire night raised $1.6 million.) The evening finished with a 45-minute set by Chicago that had the entire 1,000-strong crowd on its feet.

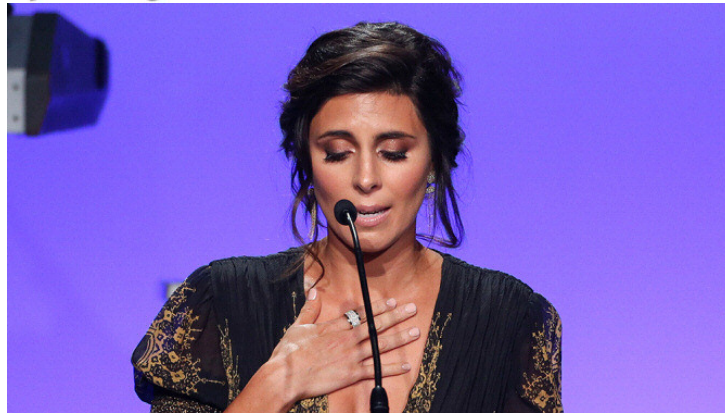

Among those on hand were musical director David Foster, Harry Hamlin and Lisa Rinna, Randy Jackson, Kris Jenner, Barbara Davis, Tommy Hilfiger, Carmen Electra, Lea Thompson and Cornelia Guest, who co-stars in Showtime's new version of Twin Peaks and said, "If I tell you who dies, it will be me who ends up dead."

Health Care Policies Take Spotlight at Race to Erase MS Gala Honoring Jamie-Lynn Sigler

Hope and community were strong among the celebrity guests who helped honor Jamie-Lynn Sigler on Friday at the 24th Race to Erase MS Gala at The Beverly Hilton. Chicago headlined the benefit. Guests included music director David Foster, Harry Hamlin and Lisa Rinna, Quincy Jones, Randy Jackson, and Lea Thompson — a longtime supporter of the annual multiple sclerosis benefit who said the initiatives are more important now amid current legislation that could jeopardize medical coverage for many Americans.

"We're here to raise money and awareness for this disease, for people to use their influence to benefit people that are less fortunate than them, especially in this time," said Thompson.

"It's very scary that all these things — people with pre-existing conditions... What do they do? How you get insurance and how do you take care of yourself now? It's absolutely brutal."

Kathy Griffin, who gave the night's opening remarks, said she has observed a "shift change" across the country while taking her stand-up act on the road. "I'm on a 50-city tour and it's all everyone was talking about is this administration," Griffin said. "Yesterday's House vote scared the hell out of everyone or any thinking, rational person," she added. "Tonight, this room, honestly, is probably half Trump voters. Not my demo, but the good thing is everyone understands illness. Tonight the theme is MS, but the health care conversation is everywhere."

Emotions were running high for Sigler when she tearfully accepted the honor from her dear friend, Lance Bass.

The 35-year-old, who revealed last year that she had been diagnosed with multiple sclerosis since she was 20 years old, was recognized with the Medal of Hope award for her work raising awareness about the autoimmune disease.

"There's nothing easy about living with MS — it affects every area of my life, but that's why I live with hope now," Sigler shared. The "Sopranos" star cited her husband, former pro baseball player Cutter Dykstra, and their 3-year-old son for giving her strength while battling her health woes in private.

The Race to Erase MS was founded by philanthropist Nancy Davis in 1993 after her own diagnosis with multiple sclerosis. The charity has raised more than $36 million for research programs since 1999.

Jamie-Lynn Sigler Opens Up About Living with MS, Her Sex Life and Marriage, and What's Next

BY JESSICA RADLOFF OCTOBER 31, 2016 10:30 AM

For years, Sopranos actress Jamie-Lynn Sigler attended the Race to Erase MS Gala—an annual black-tie fundraiser in Los Angeles—to lend her star power to help find a cure for the neurological disease. What no one knew was that Sigler wasn't there to support a friend or merely embrace another important cause—she was there as someone living with the disease.

"I didn't tell anyone [about my multiple sclerosis]," reflects Sigler, now 35. "It's very surreal because it's an event that I used to go to and would think, 'No one even knows I have this. [And yet], I'm one of the people that will benefit from this.'"

Until earlier this year, Sigler lived silently with the disease for 15 years. "When I was diagnosed [at age 20], my doctor said, 'I don't want you to think you can't do anything that you don't want to do in this life.' MS is part of me, but it's not who I am."

While most people have heard about MS, or may know someone who has it, it's still a largely misunderstood disease. "There can be different stages of the disease, or different types of MS," Sigler points out. "I have relapse remitting MS, which means that my symptoms can come and go. Usually when you stay on treatment, those flare-ups happen less and less." The National Multiple Sclerosis Society identifies four disease courses of MS, including RRMS (what Sigler has), primary-progressive MS (PPMS), secondary-progressive MS (SPMS), and progressive-relapsing MS. Each of these disease courses might be mild, moderate or severe. Approximately 85% of those with MS have the kind that Sigler does.

Siedah Garrett will sing her new single "Carry On" among invited guests including Larry King, Sarah Paulson, Kathy Griffin, Randy Jackson, Lance Bass and New Girl's Max Greenfield at the Beverly Hilton on May 5.

Garrett, who was nominated for the best original song Oscar twice for songs from Rio and Dreamgirls, said she was inspired to write the song after meeting Davis and learning of her dedication to finding a cure for MS. "I've always embraced the opportunity to use my God-given talent as a lyricist to support social causes and charities, and encourage others to do the same," said Garrett in a statement. "With MS, for me it's very personal, in that someone close to me is fighting the disease. If my songs in some small way can make a difference, then I'll keep on writing."

Garrett also currently has released her single "G.H.E.T.T.O." (Greatness Happens Even Though There's Oppression) featuring Common.

Chicago to Perform at Nancy Davis' Race to Erase MS Gala (Exclusive)

8:00 AM PDT 3/21/2017 by Arlene Washington

The star-studded gala will take place May 5 at the Beverly Hilton in Los Angeles.

American rock band Chicago will entertain Nancy Davis' star-studded Race to Erase MS Gala. The 24th annual benefit will take place May 5 at the Beverly Hilton in Los Angeles in an effort to further treatment for multiple sclerosis.

The gala has previously featured performances by Elton John, KISS, Stevie Wonder, Aerosmith, CeeLo Green, Natalie Cole, Steven Tyler, Ne-Yo and Rita Ora. This year's event will honor Sopranos alum Jamie-Lynn Sigler with the Medal of Hope award for her battle with MS for the past 15 years.

"Chicago is one of my favorite bands of all time and has endless hits that remind me so much of all the special moments in my life," said Davis, who founded Race to Erase MS. "I am so excited that they can join us at this year's Race to Erase MS Gala to support the cause."

The annual event has raised over $46 million for MS — a disease that Davis was diagnosed with over 20 years ago. This year's funds will go toward the Center Without Walls program, established to bring together top doctors to find a cure for MS.

Every month of May finds the blossoming jacaranda trees purpling the landscape of Los Angeles.

And every month of May, Nancy Davis hosts her Race to Erase MS galas, which, over these past 24 years, has raised $50 million from the events she masterfully organizes. They are meticulously planned, and, frankly, with her gung-ho smarts, we would not be surprised if she commandeered a studio.

The Race to Erase MS came about when Nancy herself was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis. In no way deterred, she stood tall and vowed defensively to seek a cure. Which, as she proudly believes, is forthcoming, considering the “happening” research over the years.

Last week’s Race to Erase MS at The Beverly Hilton honored Jamie-Lynn Sigler, and featured a rousing concert from the rock group Chicago that drew standing ovations from the jump-for-joy crowd. The gala added $1.6 million for contributed research by the forever-grateful MS medical community that bows to Nancy as their guardian angel.

On Friday (May 5), multiple sclerosis advocate and Center Without Walls founder Nancy Davis welcomed guests to the Beverly Hilton for the 24th Annual Race To Erase MS Gala, sponsored by Svedka Vodka. The event raised $1.6 million to benefit Race to Erase MS and its Center Without Walls program.

Kathy Griffin took to the stage to kick off the evening, introducing Nancy Davis.

Nancy thanked singer-songwriter Siedah Garrett for being there to debut her new single, which she wrote for the event. Entitled "Carry On," proceeds from the new song will benefit the Race to Erase MS. Davis spoke about this year's honoree, Jamie-Lynn Sigler, and the incredible impact she has had on the MS community by bravely sharing her diagnosis, and helping to bring awareness to the cause.

Lance Bass stepped onstage to present Jamie-Lynn Sigler with the 2017 Medal of Hope Award. After watching a tribute video by friends Lea Michele, JoAnna Garcia Swisher and Emmanuelle Chriqui, Sigler gave an emotional and inspiring speech, touching on the struggles she has encountered while living with MS; practically everyone in the audience was tearing up during it.

Quincy Jones introduced the first performer of the evening, saying: "My beloved baby lady sister Siedah Garrett!"

Before singing "Man in the Mirror," the smash hit she co-wrote with Glen Ballard for Michael Jackson, Siedah said, "I am coming out tonight." Pausing, she continued: "Five years ago I was diagnosed with MS." Prior to the fundraiser, her MS diagnosis was not made public.

In what has become a Race to Erase MS tradition over the past 24 years, an uplifting rendition of "Lean On Me" was performed as the finale of the evening, led by Chicago and David Foster, who were joined on stage by Nancy Davis, Randy Jackson, Lance Bass, Trevis Brendmoe, Siedah Garrett, Shawn Hook, Olivia Keegan, David Osmond, Wesley Stromberg, and more.

She will be honored tomorrow night with the Medal of Hope Award at Nancy Davis' 24th annual Race to Erase MS Gala in Beverly Hills.

"I was given MS for a reason and I don't know why," Sigler said. "I would never have chosen it for myself but I've got to figure out how to make the best of it, make it worth it, because otherwise life can feel pretty bleak. I'm not trying to sugarcoat it though. I still have my moments. I still have days where it just sucks but I've got to do the best that I can with this. That has been sort of my new mantra and affirmations that I recite to myself daily because I have no choice."

Davis praises Sigler for her honesty and decision to use her voice in the fight against MS. "Since she did come out I think it's made a huge difference in people's lives, people who really identify with her and her age," Davis said. "So many young people have MS...I think a lot of people feel like, 'Hey, it's OK, I'm not the only person with this.'"

Davis launched Race to Erase 24 years ago.

"I had a great big vision which I still have," Davis says. "I'm so grateful and lucky because when I first started doing the event I knew I had to do something but I didn't have all my ducks in a row and I didn't understand as much as I do now."

This year's gala will feature performances by Chicago, David Foster and singer-songwriter Siedah Garrett. Presenters will include Lance Bass, Kate Graham, Kathy Griffin, Randy Jackson and Howie Mandel.

She revealed last year that she has multiple sclerosis (MS).

And since then Jamie-Lynn Sigler has done everything she can to raise awareness about the illness that she and thousands suffer from around the world at the Race to Erase MS Gala in Los Angeles on Friday.

The 35-year-old actress wiped away tears as she spoke about her diagnosis at the fundraiser.

Close to home: Jamie-Lynn Sigler, an MS sufferer herself, was honoured at the Race to Erase MS Gala in Los Angeles, California, on Friday

For the important night, the actress dressed to impress.

The Sopranos star wore a floor-length gown with a plunging neckline.

She styled her chestnut tresses into an elegant up-do, which featured loose tendrils in waves framing her pretty face.

Her make-up stayed immaculately applied throughout - despite the emotion of the night - with a smoked eye and plenty of lash.

She had giant dangling diamond earrings by way of accessory.

Lance Bass joined her for the honor, and looked handsome as ever in a pale blue/grey suit.

The evening also featured performances by Seidah Garrett and Chicago.

Speaking of her diagnosis ahead of the event, she said: 'So much of your life, I think when you're living with MS, can feel like tunnel vision, like you're just really in this fight every day and you can't look outside yourself,' reports ET.

The star was first diagnosed at the age of 20 and described the news as 'a sobering moment,' and has admitted that she 'lived in denial for a while.'

ET recently caught up with Murgatroyd and Chmerkovskiy at the 24th Annual Race to Erase MS Gala in Los Angeles, where they opened up about how parenting has been going thus far. The event marked the adorable duo's first official "date night" since Shai's arrival.

She is a veteran actress with a career spanning nearly 30 years.

And it looks like Lisa Rinna is passing off that experience to her children.

The 53-year-old star put on quite the display while flanked by her daughters Delilah and Amelia Hamlin at the 24th annual Race To Erase MS Gala in Los Angeles on Friday night.

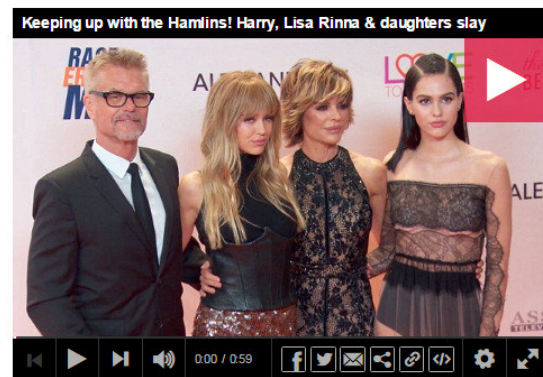

Tremendous trio: Lisa Rinna was flanked by daughters Amelia (left) and Delilah (right) Hamlin at the 24th annual Race To Erase MS Gala in Los Angeles on Friday night

The stunning trio were also joined by husband and father Harry Hamlin as they attended the star-studded event at the celeb-favorite Beverly Hilton Hotel.

Lisa showcased her slim figure in a lacy black strapless gown which featured plenty of sheer paneling.

She wore her signature medium-length highlighted feathered brunette tresses down.

The Real Housewives Of Beverly Hills star's make-up was perfect for the evening as she sported smokey eye along with a swipe of shiny pink lip.

Delilah, 18, wore an intricate number featuring black leather around the torso and bronze sequins down the skirt which flowed into hanging black fringe.

Her blonde locks were worn down and disheveled as her bangs ended just above her eyes.

Amelia, 15, sported a sheer black and white number along with strappy black stilettos.

Proud father Harry kept his look simple in a black suit with matching tie and dress shoes along with a crisp white dress shirt.

Delilah and Amelia have been making waves in modelling and it's even been said that they could be the next Bella and Gigi Hadid as they are both siblings and their mothers star in the Real Housewives Franchise.

In fact they are home-schooled in order to accommodate their new jetsetting life as Delilah recently told WWD: "My sister and I go to Halfstrom Academy, which is a one-on-one individualized study school.

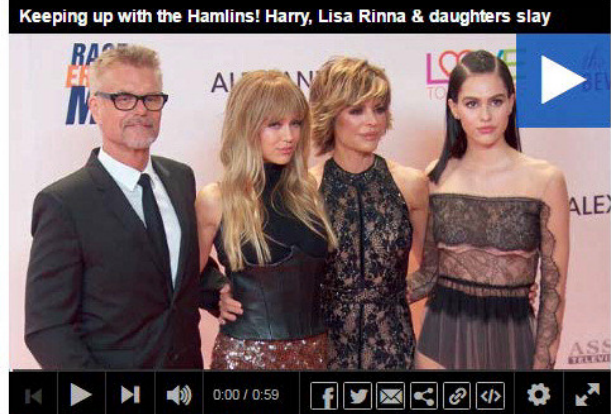

'You go into the office two hours a day and you meet with one teacher, one on one. It's honestly great. You only have 16 classes per class. It's geared to people who are travelling, and it's been really helpful.'

According to Merriam-Webster, "Surreal" may be the best way to sum up the year in review. From "tweets" to "deplorables" to "selfies," it had the good the bad and the ugly. Who knows what tomorrow has in the mix? So, before we venture ahead, here are some memorable moments from two-oh-one-six.

THERE'S SOMETHING IN THE ARIA

Malibu's Los Angeles Opera kingpin Marc Stern was proud to announce the lineup for the 2016-17 season. An updated version of "Macbeth" by Verdi starring Placido Domingo and Philip Glass' "Akhnaten" were the highlights.

Mark said, "I can't wait to see what the next 30 years have in store for us." He also thanked all the members on board, adding the repertory and artist roster for the company's 2016-17 season was created by Mr. Domingo in collaboration with Music Director James Conlon and President and CEO Christopher Koelsch.

SEALED WITH A KISS

Better believe it, they're gonna rock and roll all night and party every day. Yep, it was time for the annual Race to Erase MS Gala on April 15, where the iconic rock band Kiss gave a shout out to help raise big bucks for a totally awesome cause and one totally awesome lady. For the past 23 years, Nancy Davis and a lot of her pals from Malibu to Manhattan have collected a whopping $46 million to help make multiple sclerosis a thing of the past.

Kiss joined Race to Erase MS founder Davis to salute 2016 "Medal of Hope" Award recipient Carolyn Rafaelian for all her hard work and inspirational leadership.

It's an event that incorporates tributes, gourmet meals and weaves old school music with a serious message not lost on anyone.

"If you have your health, it's easy to take it for granted, but for all those who need us, need us to care, contribute, make a difference, here is your opportunity with the 23rd Annual Race to Erase MS Gala," said Kiss rocker Gene Simmons. "Kiss is honored to perform this year but it's going to be even better when we come back to play the 'We Kicked MS' Ass Party!"

Though the social year is made of bits of gold and green, let's see what's next for 2017.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA — Actress Jamie-Lynn Sigler will receive the Medal of Hope at Friday's 24th annual Race to Erase MS Gala in Beverly Hills for announcing that she has been diagnosed with multiple sclerosis.

"She has made a profound statement in the community by bringing multiple sclerosis into the limelight with her public diagnosis and has made it her mission to help find a cure for MS," said Nancy Davis, who founded Race to Erase MS in 1993 after being diagnosed with the disease.

All proceeds from the gala at The Beverly Hilton will fund the foundation's Center Without Walls program, a network of the nation's top seven MS research centers, including Cedars-Sinai Medical Center and USC, which conduct research programs and therapeutic approaches to eradicate MS.

"While there's no cure for MS yet, we have broken so much new ground in a very short time," Davis said.

About Race to Erase MS

Race to Erase MS is dedicated to the treatment and ultimate cure for MS. Funding research is the core focus of the foundation and significant strides have been made to find the cause and cure of this debilitating disease. At the event's inception 24 years ago, the absence of medications and therapies encouraged its involvement; the Race has been instrumental in funding many pilot studies that have contributed to drugs now on the market and other very important therapies that are improving the lives of people suffering from MS.

All funds raised support the Center Without Walls program, a unique collaboration of the world's leading MS research scientists currently representing Harvard, Yale, Cedars Sinai, University of Southern California, Oregon Health Science University, UC San Francisco and Johns Hopkins. This nationwide collaboration of physicians, scientists and clinicians are on the cutting-edge of innovative research and therapeutic approaches to treat MS. It is the hope of the Race to Erase MS that in addition to combating MS through research in a clinical environment, awareness will be created by educating the public about this mysterious disease.

Fox News' Janice Dean is one of the 2.3 million people worldwide living with multiple sclerosis (MS). She appeared on Fox & Friends Friday with Nancy Davis, chairwoman of the Race to Erase MS organization to speak about why the FDA delayed the approval of Genentech's ocrelizumab, a new drug being hailed as a medical breakthrough for MS patients.

According to the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, MS is an unpredictable disease that attacks the central nervous system and disrupts the flow of information within the brain and between the brain and body. The severity of the disease cannot be predicted and most patients are diagnosed between the ages of 20 and 50.

"I think this drug is going to completely change the landscape of MS," Davis, who was diagnosed with MS 25 years ago, told Fox & Friends. "It's the first drug that suppresses your B cells, and they feel the B cells activate the T cells."

The 14 drugs currently available for MS patients work to reverse the T cell reaction, whereas ocrelizumab works to stop it before it stops. The FDA was scheduled to issue a decision on the drug in December, but pushed it back until March

"It's also the first drug that will help people with the more chronic, progressive and primary progressive MS," Davis said.

"Nothing has ever been able to specifically help people with that type of MS."

Dean, who was diagnosed in 2005 and went public with the disease in 2008, thanked Davis for working with doctors to be proactive about the disease and said that she believes researchers are on the brink of finding a cure.

"I think we're almost there," Dean said. "If not a cure right now, a stop in the progression in the disease, which would be so helpful."

The Annual Race To Erase MS Gala featured performances by Chicago, David Foster, Siedah Garrett, Lance Bass and more, on Friday, May 5th at the Beverly Hilton.

"The Race To Erase MS was such an upbeat evening as we received FDA approval on an MS drug that we funded the pilot studies for which is going to change the whole landscape for everybody with Multiple Sclerosis. It was wonderful to honor Jamie Lynn Sigler this year, and to have the very talented singer songwriter Siedah Garrett debut her extraordinary song Carry On which will benefit MS, accompanied on stage by the incredible David Foster. Chicago played a full concert and everybody was up on their feet. It was so amazing how happy everybody was to truly celebrate the purpose, which is why we created The Race To Erase MS." – Nancy Davis (www.erasems.org)

The foundation's core focus is funding Young Investigator Awards ($75,000 each) and Pilot Grants ($75,000 each). Race to Erase MS is the only foundation that actively supports Young Investigators who would otherwise be lost to private practice. RACE TO ERASE MS HAS CONTRIBUTED TO HELP BRING FDA APPROVED MEDICATIONS TO THE MARKET. There are now 15 drugs available.

The most recent medication to be approved by the FDA is Genentech's OCREVUS™, the first treatment option for relapsing and primary progressive forms of MS. OCREVUS™ is the first drug for MS that suppresses the B-Cells, which are thought to activate the T-Cells, whereas other drugs on the market try to reverse the T-Cell reaction. Thus, this new medication essentially stops the disease before it starts or kicks off an attack.

"The scientific discoveries that led to the development of OCREVUS™ were carried out over a period of many years at UCSF in work supported by the Race to Erase MS and the Center Without Walls program founded by Nancy Davis. B-cell therapy has emerged as a major breakthrough for people with MS, and the first therapy of this type for MS, was approved by the FDA on March 28, 2017." – Dr. Stephen Hauser

They've been together for several years now, and Kris Jenner and her boyfriend Corey Gamble were the picture of happiness on Friday night as they attended the Race to Erase MS Gala.

The couple, who were rumored to have split a few months ago, looked truly happy as they played around while posing for cameras.

Kris looked incredible as her frock hugged her ample curves and also opted to wear her wide metal bracelet over her sleeve on her left arm.

A glittering diamond necklace and stud earrings completed the elegant ensemble.

Her raven-colored bob was close cropped, and the mother of Kim Kardashian's make-up was exquisite, and featured very dark eyeliner.

Matching silver pumps and a diamond necklace finished off her shining look.

Entourage star Emmanuelle Chriqui, 41, highlighted her trim form in a white off the shoulder dress which included a huge split up the left thigh.
