Earth, Wind & Fire got the party grooving at the second annual Drive-In to Erase MS Gala at the Rose Bowl on Friday night in Pasadena, which raised $1.4 million for the cause.

Last September, the star-studded fundraiser adopted a drive-in model, with stars rolling over the orange carpet instead of walking it. This year, the event shifted to more of a hybrid model, with attendees encouraged to hop out of their car and enjoy the event from pop-up chairs on the lawn, as well as a livestream for those who could not attend.

"I'm just going to request that all future red carpets we do in the car, because that was awesome," Lance Bass quipped from the stage. "It's now 28 years that we've been dealing with the terrible disease called multiple sclerosis. And who knew we'd all be dealing with a new horrific disease that would make us socially distance for over a year."

Hollywood: Nancy Davis's Annual Race to Erase MS Gala Raises $1.4 Mil With a Drive-in at the Rose Bowl

■ Celebrity ■ charity Leah Sydney

Earth Wind & Fire definitely made the attendees at "Drive-In to Erase MS Gala" at the Rose Bowl this past Friday night, forget that COVID even happened. And Nancy Davis just doesn't give up.

The combination proved a winning night, which raised $1.4 millions dollars help find a cure for multiple sclerosis.

Davis herself was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis in 1991 at the age of 31. She started her foundation in 1993 and has used her platform for good ever since to raise awareness and funds. She is the intrepid daughter of the late Marvin Davis and the much admired, classiest woman in Hollywood Barbara Davis.

Will she ever stop? Nancy told us, "We got two more drugs this year, we have twenty-two now, all with FDA approval. We have such generous supporters that we were able to keep our research going, it's kind of a miracle. But I'm not finishing until we find a cure, and we are going to find a cure, there is no doubt about it."

Rhinelanders attract drivers in car rally

July 19, 2021

Media Impressions: 401,990

<https://www.wjfw.com/storydetails/20210719161612/rhinelanders-attract-drivers-in-car-rally>

Rhinelanders - Trevor Milkins and his wife Annalynn were driving just one of the 80 cars through Rhinelanders. But that was just one of their stops across several states for the Great Lakes Rally.

"It's not a race. It's a scavenger hunt," said Trevor.

Starting in Eau Claire and ending in Holland, Michigan, teams stop at designated checkpoints and take photos of landmarks along the way.

After participating in the New England rally in 2019, the Milkins are excited to visit a new part of the country.

"We'll respect the individual towns and what it is, we're not going to go flying through your towns and your cities and stuff like that," said Trevor.

Event organizers select a different charity every year.

"It's for a really good cause," said Trevor.

This year, they're driving to benefit "Race to Erase MS," a non-profit organization for multiple sclerosis research. Milkins says organizers choose impactful charities.

"They're just really good guys. They find the charities that typically don't have the big name recognition, so it just means a lot to us to be able to help what little bit we can," said Trevor.

It's four days of driving broken up with 21 checkpoints.

"This is checkpoint two and right now we're looking at hodgepodge and we're supposed to get several pictures of hodgepodge," said rally participant Sharon Waisan.

Waisan likes the adventure the scavenger hunt brings. She found the hodgepodge, and now she's on the lookout for what's next, which is somewhere on the way to Cassopolis, Michigan.

"Our next checkpoint is this, it's a picture of an animal. It's not a hodgepodge and we've got to find out what it is and where it is and we don't have a clue yet," said Waisan.

Waisan might not know exactly where she's going right now, but she does know she's driving for a good cause.

"Rally North America, can't beat them. Great people," said Trevor.

The teams are set to finish the scavenger hunt on Thursday. Direct donations to Race to Erase MS supporting Rally North America can be made here.
