NANCY DAVIS

on a Mission to Erase MS and Make the World a Better Place

Nancy Davis is a woman on a mission, the Denver born Californian has dedicated her life to her children, husband, and making the world a better place. She is a jewelry and clothing designer, author, and she has spent the past few years dedicating her life to finding a cure for multiple sclerosis and helping those battling drug addiction. In 1991, at age 33, Nancy was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis and was facing the battle of her life. She was told by doctors that she would be lucky to retain the ability to merely operate a remote control on her television. However, she realized she was too young and had a lot more to do in her life.

29th Annual Race to MS Gala

Friday night's Race to MS gala, led by Multiple Sclerosis advocate and Center Without Walls founder Nancy Davis, raised over $1.4 million to benefit MS research in the annual event, held this year at the Fairmont Century Plaza. The night featured a performance by Nile Rodgers and Chic, and Tommy Hilfinger presented its latest adaptive collection in a fashion show. Guests included Cybill Shepherd, Ed Begley Jr., Kathy Hilton, Vanna White and Vivica Fox.

After two years of presenting the annual Race to Erase MS gala as a drive-in event at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, the annual festivities will return as a ballroom benefit at the newly renovated Fairmont Century Plaza hotel on May 20.

Nile Rodgers & Chic will perform during the evening's program, which will also feature a Tommy Hilfiger Adaptive fashion show with clothing designed to make dressing easier for adults and children with disabilities.

"I am thrilled to be returning to our longtime home at the Fairmont Century Plaza for this year's Race to Erase MS Gala, where our fundraising efforts provide tremendous support for the medical and scientific community's integral research into finding a cure for MS," Race to Erase MS founder Nancy Davis said on Monday morning. "To date we have raised over $50 million for MS research and there are now 22 FDA approved therapies available to treat multiple sclerosis.

Philanthropist Nancy Davis Opens Up About Life with Multiple Sclerosis and Her Mission to Help Others

"I was really lucky," the Race to Erase MS founder tells PEOPLE of her 30-year battle with the debilitating disease as she gears up to host her 29th annual fundraiser

By Lance Brody May 04, 2022 02:37 PM

Philanthropist Nancy Davis was living a relatively normal and healthy lifestyle at 33 years old until a ski accident changed everything — doctors discovered she was suffering from much worse than an ACL tear, but rather Multiple Sclerosis, or MS.

"I felt that the ski accident was causing me to lose feelings, so I had a knee brace and all these things, and it didn't make any sense why I was losing feeling everywhere," Davis, who was also suffering from a loss of eyesight and sensation in her fingers and hands, tells PEOPLE. "But, it turned out it was MS, and I found out three weeks later."

IT'S ALL ABOUT LOVE

Nancy Davis has spent her life inspiring others, bringing them peace and love in their daily lives, and hope for their future. This inspiration manifested itself into a creative outlet for this multi-talented woman with her jewelry, accessory and gift collection.

Nancy's initial jewelry design was created for the 2002 annual Race to Erase MS with Tommy Hilfiger. "Tommy and I needed a theme for the event and we felt a peace and love theme was perfect for the post 9/11 times."

Thus, the striking design of a heart with a peace sign nestled in the middle was born and it has since become the celebrity-recognized symbol of her line. Necklaces bearing this powerful icon were gifted to performers at the 2002 gala. Many admirers inquired how they could purchase this jewelry for family and friends. This led to the creation of Peace & Love Jewelry by Nancy Davis, which was exclusively launched by Saks Fifth Avenue. Portions of the sales in her line are allocated to support her causes.

Nancy Davis was told she would “never walk again” when she was shockingly diagnosed with multiple sclerosis in 1992, following what she thought was pain from a ski injury. At 33 years old, the young woman was told by doctors she had “the most impossible, difficult, tragic disease and that there would never be a cure,” she recalled in an EXCLUSIVE interview with HollywoodLife. Fast-forward to 2022, Nancy has raised over $50 million dollars through her non-profit organization Race To Erase MS, supporting the Center Without Walls program, a unique collaboration of the world’s leading MS research scientists currently representing Harvard, Yale, Cedars Sinai, University of Southern California, Oregon Health Science University, UC San Francisco, Johns Hopkins, and UCLA.

Stately recognition for her generous support helping those suffering with Multiple Sclerosis, philanthropist Nancy Davis shares by privilege there is hope and a fulfilling life awaiting those determined to get healthy first while enjoying family, friends and all the good things around them. Nancy's life changed when she was involved in a ski accident. She was 33-years-old. During her stay in the hospital, doctors discovered more than the injury caused by her skiing accident; they discovered that she was suffering with Multiple Sclerosis. From that moment on, Nancy's life changed not only for herself but for others as she and her mother Barbara Davis joined to bring awareness to the cause and hope to those suffering with the illness. Before her diagnosis Nancy said, "I felt like the sky accident was coming out to love being. I had a love here and all these things, and so this I make my whole life I was being being everywhere." The experienced strength love and optimism in her. Nancy and family MS took over her body, but her Nancy's will to overcome it's effects.

Founder of the Race to Erase MS, Nancy and the organization celebrated its 29th Annual Gala, Love to Erase MS at the Encinitas Country Plaza. One of the past annual fundraising events to support innovative research and more diagnostic approaches to eradicate MS, the Foundation serves as a collaboration between eight leading MS research centers across the U.S. who work as a team on groundbreaking research that treats and will ultimately find a cure for MS. This year's gala featured spectacular performances by Grammy Award-winning composer, producer, guitarist and Rock & Roll Hall of Fame inductee Nile Rodgers co-founder of the iconic musical group CHIC. Rodgers performed (chill) hopping hits like "Le Freak," (the biggest selling single in Atlantic Records history) sporting top-top with the universal appeal of "Good Times" showcasing music across generations. Highlighted was a fashion show by designer Tommy Hilfiger with Tommy Hilfiger Adaptive collection which launched in 2017 and features innovative clothing to help bring disabled people and adults who have disabilities. The Race to Erase MS event was also honored with creative set design highlights by Shepoff & Fairley and Studio Stambler One with original artwork designed. Since the Race to Erase MS Foundation was introduced by Nancy Davis in 1993, more than $10 million has been raised, and 22 FDA approved therapies reveal that are aggressively fighting MS offering hope, inspiration and resources to those in need.

RACE TO ERASE

race...it's a race for answers and cures*

By Shar Peters

It's not unusual to have life-changing events throughout your journey on this planet. Many of these transitional experiences may influence who you become, what you do, and sometimes, change your life and its direction. But for one kind and unselfish woman, a medical diagnosis not only is changing her life, but it is giving hope and life-saving benefits to many others.

A Startling Medical Diagnosis

Nancy Davis, a philanthropist and foundation creator from Los Angeles, shares her life-altering circumstances. In a lengthy phone interview, Nancy's drive, unending energy and concern for others becomes apparent. She talks openly about her health struggles and her own surprising medical diagnosis when she was in her early 30s. Ultimately, it shook her life as she knew it. "I was devastated," she remembers.

Growing up in Denver, Nancy was an avid and skilled skier. However, as fate would have it, a skiing accident in Aspen in 1991, when she was 33, was the beginning of her quest to get answers and cures to a medical problem she didn't know she had. This accident immediately changed her life, and fortuitously, in various ways, is changing the lives of many others.

Eager to tell her story, Nancy relates that following the skiing mishap that tore her ACL, she began having symptoms totally unrelated to her injury and the knee brace.

"About three weeks after the accident I woke up and I was having these crazy symptoms."

I started losing the feeling first in three fingertips of my right hand, and then the fingertips in my left hand, and then my whole hand," she remembers. "Every few days I had more numbness; and I noticed my eyesight failing."

Nancy consulted her orthopedic doctor thinking perhaps the brace was pinching against a nerve and causing the numbness. The doctor agreed that something had “gone strangely awry here.” She said it didn’t make sense to him and he referred her to a neurologist. This new doctor ordered numerous tests, including an MRI, and gave Nancy the shocking news the next day that she had multiple sclerosis (MS), a degenerative neurological disease.

“At that time,” Nancy remembers, “I was a young mom with three children to take care of. I wasn’t in a particularly good marriage, and here the doctor is telling me that my life as I knew it was over.” He went on to tell her that she could have trouble walking, and, if she was lucky, she may be able to lift a remote to change the TV station. He cautioned that she probably wouldn’t be able to care for herself.

“I was young. I couldn’t accept this news,” she recalls. “I had a lot of life to live. It wasn’t what I had planned.”

Nancy wouldn’t accept this prognosis. She sought others’ opinions and did extensive research. “I realized finding answers myself was the most important thing I could do.”

Through her own investigations and doctors’ consultations, Nancy discovered there was no known cause for MS, no drugs to treat the disease, and basically no hope—at least at that time.

Establishing a Foundation to Fund Research

Growing up in a philanthropic family, charity and fundraising are familiar to Nancy. Her mother successfully established the Barbara Davis Center for Childhood Diabetes in Aurora, CO, after Nancy’s sister was diagnosed with the disease. Fortunately, because of the family she grew up in, Nancy knew how to be proactive, gather support for a cause, and get things done.

She took control. She had the means and the skills to establish a foundation and garner donations to combat MS and create hope—so, she did. In 1993, she established the Nancy Davis Foundation for Multiple Sclerosis, which is now called Race to Erase MS. This foundation is dedicated to research for the treatment and ultimate cure of MS.

The first Race to Erase MS event was held in Aspen, Colorado in 1993 and raised $1.3 million for the foundation. Since, the event has moved to Los Angeles, and over the years the annual Race to Erase MS gala has raised over $51 million for research.

The 2022 Gala is Back Indoors

This year’s festivities will be held on May 20 and once again be in a resplendent ballroom after resourcefully being held as a Drive-In event at the Rose Bowl for two years because of Covid. “We are finally back indoors,” beams Nancy, “and we are so excited to be opening with a fashion show. Long-time supporter, Tommy Hilfiger, will showcase his amazing line of adaptive clothing and other fashions that night." Over a thousand attendees are expected to fill the ballroom at the Fairmont Century Plaza Hotel in LA, where they will be entertained by various celebrities, including Niles Rodgers and the band Chic. "We are so lucky to have stars donate their time and talents to help us raise funds," Nancy says.

The Best Researchers Seek Answers

To date, over 22 drugs, including life-changing infusions and injections, are now on the market to treat MS. There were none when Nancy was diagnosed.

Research is at the core of these breakthroughs. Nancy is very cognizant of the importance and value of research, leading her to establish the Center Without Walls (CWW) program which is funded by the Race to Erase MS foundation. Nancy explains why CWW was founded and why it is so important. "We discovered that so much research is duplicated and the results are not shared or communicated in a timely manner. So, we addressed this by bringing the best physicians and researchers in the nation and world together into one program (CWW) to collaborate on multiple sclerosis." These young doctors and research professionals meet regularly to share their findings and new discoveries, resulting in more efficient and advanced MS research. "This group is magical," says Nancy.

When asked what her greatest blessings have been, Nancy ponders for only a few seconds, and then answers from her heart, "My parents."

She adds, "Watching how my parents viewed a problem, and instead of walking away from it, found a way to solve it, taught me so much." With a small laugh, she says, "I think it is in my DNA to never take no for an answer."

In an effort to help others on their journey, Nancy wrote the book, Lean on Me: Ten Powerful Steps to Moving Beyond Your Diagnosis and Taking Back Your Life. This book offers advice to patients who may have received a recent life-changing diagnosis or who are dealing with a chronic illness.

"You need to know that there is another door that can be opened—and there is something you can do," Nancy states.

FOUNDER OF CURE ADDICTION NOW (CAN) AND RACE TO ERASE MS

By Totalprestige Magazine

Nancy Davis was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis at the age of 33 in 1991. After being told by her doctors that she would be “lucky” to operate a remote control on her TV, she realized she was too young and too busy to let the disease stop her life in its tracks.

She was determined to devote her time, relationships and resources to finding a cure.

Nancy’s hope, courage and strength continue to inspire her to maintain a vibrant quality of life despite this chronic disease, but most of all, she remains positive, continues to live her life to the fullest and is tireless in her efforts to find the cure for MS.

Multiple Sclerosis is an autoimmune disease that affects three times more women than men and the diagnosis of children with MS as young as two has increased.

It often is diagnosed in women around the age of 30 when they are in the prime of their life.

In 1993, she founded the Race To Erase MS – an organization whose primary focus is to raise funds for the most cutting-edge, aggressive and promising research in an effort to find a cure for MS.

Also in 1993, Nancy created the Race To Erase MS Gala event – an intimate ski getaway weekend in Aspen, Colorado – that raised over $1.3 million for the Foundation.

Since its inception, the Race to Erase MS has grown into a spectacular celebrity gala benefit held annually.

Over the years she has gained the support of many key individuals in the fashion and entertainment worlds. The annual Race to Erase MS gala event has raised over $50 million for multiple sclerosis research to date.

When they first started, there was no known cause, no cure, no drugs on the market, and a true lack of hope. Today they are so excited that there is FDA approval on fifteen drugs with many more on the horizon. For the young person being diagnosed with MS today, there is so much hope.

Nancy, what inspired you to find a scientific cure for addiction?

My son, Jason Davis, battled addiction on-and-off for 12 years, and unfortunately passed away at the beginning of COVID-19.

Jason’s dream was to start Cure Addiction Now (CAN) and develop new treatments and therapies to help stop addiction cravings and find easier and more equitable ways to detox for everyone.

Addiction is the leading cause of death for people under the age of 50 in our country, and that nobody had really put any significant money into the research of the science of addiction and how it affects the mind for at least 20 years.

I decided it was time that change had to be made. Around 7% of people have had great success with AA, but there is an enormous amount of people still struggling with multiple addictions, and need to find other ways of getting and staying sober.

How many people are affected by substance abuse and how can Cure Addiction prevent further addictions from occurring?

Millions and millions have been affected by substance use disorder (SUD), whether it’s personal or through a family or friend.

And, the number is continuing to grow everyday as the leading cause of death in the US. Before COVID-19, one person died of an opioid overdose every 11 minutes.

Now (post COVID-19), there is an opioid overdose every 90 seconds. And the numbers are rising. It is also so important to bring awareness, education, and research into the drug fentanyl. Fentanyl has become responsible for over 70% of today's drug overdoses, as over 95% of every drug bought outside of a drug store is laced with the deadly potent drug.

Can science replace substance abuse rehab? There are a lot of residential rehabs around the world that try to help individuals get clean. Do you feel these rehabs are doing everything possible to cure addiction?

There are some amazing residential rehabs in our country. Unfortunately, they are not all equally staffed with well-trained professionals. I believe that rehabs need more tools to deal with different types of addictions – it's not always a one-size fits all. The battle with substance abuse is a tough one because it's a brain disease. We're currently working on getting new drugs and treatments, which would provide more tools to the centers and help patients stay sober after leaving these facilities.

What is the ultimate goal of Cure Addiction? Do you believe you can end addiction medically and prevent sufferers from attending expensive in-patient rehabs?

The ultimate goal of Cured Addiction Now or CAN is to help anyone and everyone struggling with substance use disorder. Everyone has the right to the best quality of healthcare. While my son was battling addiction, he really wanted to create a foundation that was accessible to everyone because the reality is, most people can't afford rehab, have limited access to medicine, and don't have insurance.

Even when you have good insurance, it rarely covers the high cost of rehab. So, it was really important to him that we find new ways to detox in an affordable way that can be created and distributed.

We've been working hard, and will still continue to work with our research team, who specialize in addiction.

Cure Addiction is just one of the organizations you founded. Nancy, you started Race to Erase MS in 1993 after being diagnosed with the disease. Tell us about Race to Erase MS and your experience operating the organization.

I started Race to Erase MS almost 30 years ago. The 30th anniversary will be on June 2nd of 2023.

My experience with Race to Erase MS has been so inspiring. When I started the foundation and was diagnosed with MS, the future was bleak that we would ever find any medications or therapies to help stop MS.

Everyone doubted our ability to find medications, garner support, raise funds, and it's been so exciting what has happened since then.

I was told to go home and go to bed, and that I would never walk again. Today, all that has completely changed due to the 24 different drugs used to now treat MS.

We've done pilot studies for in-depth scientific research to help create dozens of new medications that can help treat MS.

Additionally, we are always encouraging new and young doctors to join forces with us, with our Young Investing Awards as new ideas are something we are always looking for.

You were diagnosed with MS after suffering an ACL injury while skiing. Can you tell us about the moment you learned you had MS? What challenges does an entrepreneur and philanthropist have when living with MS?

I woke up three weeks after my ski accident, suffering from an ACL injury. It was soon after that I began experiencing MS symptoms – first I lost the feeling in

“AROUND 7% OF PEOPLE HAVE HAD GREAT SUCCESS WITH AA, BUT THERE IS AN ENORMOUS AMOUNT OF PEOPLE STILL STRUGGLING WITH MULTIPLE ADDICTIONS, AND NEED TO FIND OTHER WAYS OF GETTING AND STAYING SOBER.”

Nancy, tell us about the Race to Erase MS gala and the celebrities that have come together to help raise funds for the organization.

We have been so lucky to be embraced and supported every year by the generous Hollywood community.

Race to Erase MS originally started out as a pro-celebrity ski weekend in Aspen.

Over the years we've had the gala in Las Vegas as well, but we've enjoyed the support from our Hollywood community.

Every year, we've had an amazing turnout of support from celebrities and well-known figures, from the fashion world of Tommy Hilfiger, Alice + Olivia, Michael Bolton, Kenny G., The Jackson family, The Hilton Family, Kardashian family, and Valentino (the designer), among others.

Ever since, it has grown with amazing entertainers like Elton John, The Eagles, Earth Wind and Fire, Andy Grammar, KISS, and Flo Rida, amongst many others.

Race to Erase MS has raised around $60 million since it was founded three decades ago. How significant has the money been to research into the disease?

We couldn't have done the research without the incredible donors that have truly given from their heart.

We are so grateful to the generous group of people who support us year after year. It wouldn't have been possible without each and every one of them.

my right fingers, then the left, and then my eyes – it was this bizarre, numbing feeling. I thought that maybe it was due to the brace on my knee cutting the circulation off, but I soon sought a doctor who diagnosed me almost immediately.

I was lucky enough to have the disease caught, as most people don't have that experience. But, there was no cure, no drugs on the market, and not that much help, so it was a very frustrating time.

As an entrepreneur and philanthropist living with MS, one of the challenges I faced early on was the overarching fear of the disease and the “what-if” questions. What if I can't walk? What if I can't take care of my kids?

How has MS medicine and treatment changed since the early 1990s? Can people live relatively normal lives nowadays?

The treatment for MS has changed more than 100% because it started with no cure at all and no hope. But today, there has been an incredible evolution with 24 FDA approved medicines, and #15 and #2 specifically have changed the course of this disease. Now, many people with RRM can live relatively normal lives – it's really exciting to see where we are today from where we started, and to know that there is research ongoing for more important drugs and therapies in the future. We however have a long way to go to help people with chronic and primary progressive MS.

Nancy Davis with daughters Mariella and Isabella Rickel

Nancy, you are known for philanthropy work, but you are also an entrepreneur. You are the owner and designer of jewelry company Peace and Love. How do you find the time to run a business and two foundations?

I love to design and find it such a fun and creative outlet. After 9/11, I was working with Tommy Hilfiger, and we created this idea that “peace and love” would be the theme for Race to Erase MS for that year.

This was a design I had always drawn since I was young and loved the beautiful sentiment of intertwining peace and love into beautiful and meaningful jewelry. I created my first Peace and Love jewelry designs that many celebrities wore that year, which really took off. Before I knew it, Saks 5th Avenue picked up my line, national television shows were featuring my product, and the designs were available in retail stores all over the country.

A portion of all sales are to benefit the organization.

How is a day in your life?

A day in my life is very full – I wake up early and go to bed late. Every morning, I thank god that I am alive, have my family, and am able to do what I do each day.

I have twin daughters, and I have extreme honor in being their mother. I’m so grateful.

I work on both Race to Erase MS and Cure Addiction Now daily, and feel so grateful that we are really saving lives.

I have many meetings and Zoom calls. I always miss my son, so I take time everyday to look at the sunsets and visit with him in my own special way. I hope he’s proud of this charity that was so important to him.

What is something most people don’t know about you?

One thing that most people don’t know about me is that I’m currently working on my second book, “Just One More Day”.

The book deals with grief, and is based on my son’s screenplay he wrote when he was 12-years-old. Jason had started working with Chris Farley on “Beverly Hills Ninja”.

When Chris passed away, Jason was devastated and dealt with his grief through writing.

After Jason passed away, I found his amazing screenplay, read it again, and thought, “what would I do if I could have my son back for 24 hours? For just one more day”? That would be my dream. And I began writing.

The journey has been extremely healing and I hope it helps to deal with the terrible disease called grief. I’m hoping to release “Just One More Day” to readers in about six months.

Choose two of your favorite quotes and write them here:

“Whether you think you can, or you think you can’t, you’re probably right”

“Lean on me / When you’re not strong / And I’ll be your friend / I’ll help you carry on... / For it won’t be long / Till I’m gonna need / somebody to lean on”

If you had the power to change just one thing in the world, what would it be?

If I had the power to change one thing in this world, it would be to bring my son Jason Davis back. Following that, it would be having the power to save lives in the world of both addiction and MS.

"We hired experts and went out to the public to find out what was needed and what was not being produced," Hilfiger explained. "We're really, I would say, the first designer brand to do clothes for people with disabilities."

Hilfiger's inclusive brand first started with a children's line, then it grew to include adults.

"The styles are the same styles we have in our regular collection, but they have all sorts of conveniences and all sorts of adaptations."

These designs will be featured at the annual Race to MS Foundation Gala in Los Angeles. The event's founder, Nancy Davis, started this about 29 years ago to raise funds to support those with Multiple Sclerosis. Hilfiger was her very first sponsor. The cause hit close to home as his sister had MS at the time.

"Here we are today, we have 22 drugs on the market and I know Tommy's too humble to say that it's because of him," Davis explained. "But a lot of it is because of someone like Tommy."

The 29th annual Race to Erase MS gala will take place tomorrow, Friday May 20 at the Fairmont Century Plaza. Head to this link for tickets and event information.

Philanthropist Nancy Davis was living a relatively normal and healthy lifestyle at 33 years old until a ski accident changed everything — doctors discovered she was suffering from much worse than an ACL tear, but rather Multiple Sclerosis, or MS.

"I felt that the ski accident was causing me to lose feelings, so I had a knee brace and all these things, and it didn't make any sense why I was losing feeling everywhere," Davis, who was also suffering from a loss of eyesight and sensation in her fingers and hands, tells PEOPLE. "But, it turned out it was MS, and I found out three weeks later."

According to the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, MS is an unpredictable disease of the central nervous system that disrupts the flow of information within the brain and between the brain and body.
